3.4. Appropriate coaching shall be conducted for employees who are significantly lagging in performance, pursuant to the PSHS System Strategic Performance Management System (SPMS).

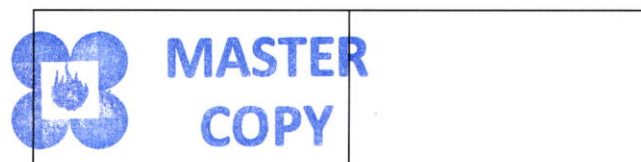

3.5. Definition of terms

3.5.1. Performance Monitoring – is a process wherein the supervisor checks and ensures that his/ her immediate subordinate is progressing towards the targets and objectives established during performance goal setting. Such monitoring may come in the form of a discussion.

3.5.2. Counselling – refers to the periodic discussions between immediate superior and subordinate focusing on any issue or problem affecting the latter's performance, both personal or work-related. The primary purpose of the counselling sessions is to open lines of communications at the lowest level and affect a "worry-free" work environment. The immediate superior's responsibility includes assisting the employee/staff member to find and apply problems/issues raised. Such measures/solutions arrived at during the conduct of counselling sessions should be properly reflected in the immediate superior's performance report.

3.5.3. Career Planning – refers to the periodic discussions between immediate superior and subordinate where the latter draws up his/her career goals, aspirations and plan. The immediate superior's responsibility includes assisting the employee in accomplishing the Career Planning Worksheet, identifying the career opportunities in the PSHS System, suggesting or recommending the appropriate development package to be applied to specific employee needs, and monitoring the application of such development package towards the achievement of the employee's career goal(s). A copy of the accomplished Career Plan will be submitted to the Personnel Section. All activities undertaken during the Career Planning sessions should be properly reflected in the immediate superior's performance report.

3.6. In its implementation, specific policies, programs and procedures are made integral parts of PSHS System's operations for the observance and guidance of all concerned. It is the policy of PSHS System to provide all its employees with such development interventions as are necessary in effecting increased productivity and high-performance levels.
